

Ever watched Seinfeld? The show where friends drop by unannounced but are always welcome? The place where hospitality is assumed so that anyone can open the fridge and help themselves? Claire's home is like that except it is not a New York apartment, it is a charming house from the 1800's with a garden outside. Come on by and she will share a jar of the pickles she has grown and preserved. Or maybe she'll offer some of her homemade botanicals to improve skin and health. Forest Gump might have seen life as a box of chocolates, but for Claire life is a farmer's market! There is just so much variety to see and taste and enjoy. On any given day, Claire might be working on one of her vintage motorcycles (she collects them), or restoring her home, or pulling some weeds, or feeding her animals (four dogs and one cat). Yes, life is an abundant "market" for Claire. And if you miss her at home, look for her out and about in her van named...wait for it..."Garden!"

Claire works in Food Services for St. Mark's.
